THE IMPACTS

IMPACT ON PARTICIPATING ORGANISATIONS

Improve understanding and skills to combat gender-based violence (GBV) in the sports sector for a lasting impact on the project's key target groups, and developing skills in designing and implementing effective interventions.

DEVELOPING THE SKILLS OF EDUCATORS

All efforts have led to the development of a comprehensive program to improve knowledge and skills, of school directors, physical education teachers and coaches. We have invested significant resources to ensure that this programme has a lasting impact and promotes high-quality education.

SUSTAINABILITY STANDARDS

The impact of the project has been meticulously designed to meet strict sustainability standards, ensuring that its effects are lasting and responsible. It is expected that the online resources created will remain fully functional even after the conclusion of the project, providing ongoing support and accessibility.

THE PROJECT

"Teacher Training to Combat Gender-Based Violence in Sport" (TETRIS) is an Erasmus+ KA2 project, which aims to raise awareness among physical education teachers, coaches and younger (physical education students) to the prevention and combating gender-based violence in sport, with particular attention to the field of physical education at school.

MAIN OBJECTIVES

- Increase awareness among stakeholders of the existence of violence - sexual or not - discrimination and intolerance against women and men in the field of sport.
- Provide useful tools and resources to support victims by increasing the ability to expose themselves and speak more freely about the acts suffered.
- Enhance the number and skills of educational staff and public and private service providers working for victims in the field of sport.
- Raise public awareness of the rights and needs of victims of gender-based violence in the field of sport and their role in protecting them.

PROJECT RESULTS

First result

The first result focused on the collection of good practices and the development of recommendations regarding the prevention and mitigation of the phenomenon of gender-based violence in sport, both for women and men. The main objective was to collect testimonies of the partner countries of the project and of the rest of Europe on the roots of the phenomenon, as well as on how this is addressed - with particular attention to the treatment of victims and the reporting process.

Second result

The second result of the project has led to the development of guidelines and methodological instructions focused on the prevention and fight against gender violence (GBV) in the teaching sector through the implementation of a training course composed by six training modules.

Third result

The third and final result of the project focused on the promotion and dissemination of the training course carried out. In this regard, several seminars and informative webinars were organized to raise awareness about the main theme of the project, reaching both stakeholders in the world of sport and students, coaches and teachers.

TARGET GROUPS AND NEEDS

High school physical education teachers and students of physical sciences providing them the skills and knowledge needed to effectively address gender-based violence in sport.

Physical education schools and their teaching staff to educate them with modern (digitized) teaching materials and to work on policies and methods to prevent and respond to gender-based violence.

Victims of gender-based violence to support them in their journey and help them report their experiences.
